INTERGRATED HEALTH CARE DELIVERY SUPPORT SYSTEM

There are several compelling reasons for MEDEXMOBILE™+ healthcare delivery units:

- When access to care is limited: the community does not have effective transportation to reach clinic sites.
- Shared medical equipment; can be allocated across many sites
- Professional staff can be shared across sites, reaching the whole service area with physician, nurse practitioner, physician's assistant or registered medical technician making healthcare available to all.
- MEDEXMOBILE™+ units can provide a good predictor; for where new fixed clinic sites should be located in the future.
- MEDEXMOBILE™+ healthcare delivery unit is a building-on-wheels that can change focus and locations (tractor trailers or airlift) easily while providing scheduled neighborhood and industrial on-site based healthcare delivery services.
- MEDEXMOBILE™+ healthcare delivery units with satellite communication can link up patient and provider, so the patient and family can finally have a state of art healthcare provider home.

HOW MUCH SPACE DO YOU NEED?

The advantages of Single-Body Vans

MEDEXMOBILE + offers healthcare vans in sizes from 30 to 40 ft long are Single Van Body Units.

Which chassis style is better depends on the criteria that you set for your interior space needs.

More affordable to operate and easier to drive. Single body vans are more compact and easier to park, more affordable, less complicated to title & register with DOT than semis; these single body van units are the most popular size ordered.

The advantages of Semi-Trailers

More Space. Semis offer from 35 to 250 percent more space than single body vans, lengths over 40ft.

More Dependable. With the pulling tractor separate from trailer, if you have an engine or transmission problem, another tractor does the job.
